MULTIVAC

Bringing world-leading technologies together

When two industry leaders align around a shared customer need, the result is more than collaboration – it is a smarter, more powerful solution. Provisur and MULTIVAC Group have joined forces to deliver an integrated approach to bacon and whole muscle products, including raw ham, that reflects how processors want to buy, build, and operate production lines today.

The partnership brings together Provisur's expertise in form pressing and slicing with MULTIVAC's advanced packaging technologies, creating a seamless solution from product preparation through to final pack. By combining the strengths of both companies, processors can benefit from a fully integrated line designed to maximize product quality, efficiency, throughput, and operational performance. This cooperation enables customers to access best-in-class technologies from two market leaders through a coordinated solution that simplifies project planning, line integration, and long-term production management. The result is a streamlined approach that helps processors reduce complexity while enhancing productivity and consistency across their operations.

Experts from both companies work closely with customers to evaluate production requirements and develop tailored line configurations that address specific processing and packaging objectives. This collaborative approach ensures that processors benefit from optimized solutions that meet the demands of today's competitive food manufacturing environment.

As food processors continue to seek greater efficiency, flexibility, and reliability, the partnership between Provisur and MULTIVAC represents a new level of integration – bringing together complementary technologies, shared expertise, and a common commitment to helping customers achieve operational excellence.

Combining best-in-class processing and packaging technologies to create greater value for food processors

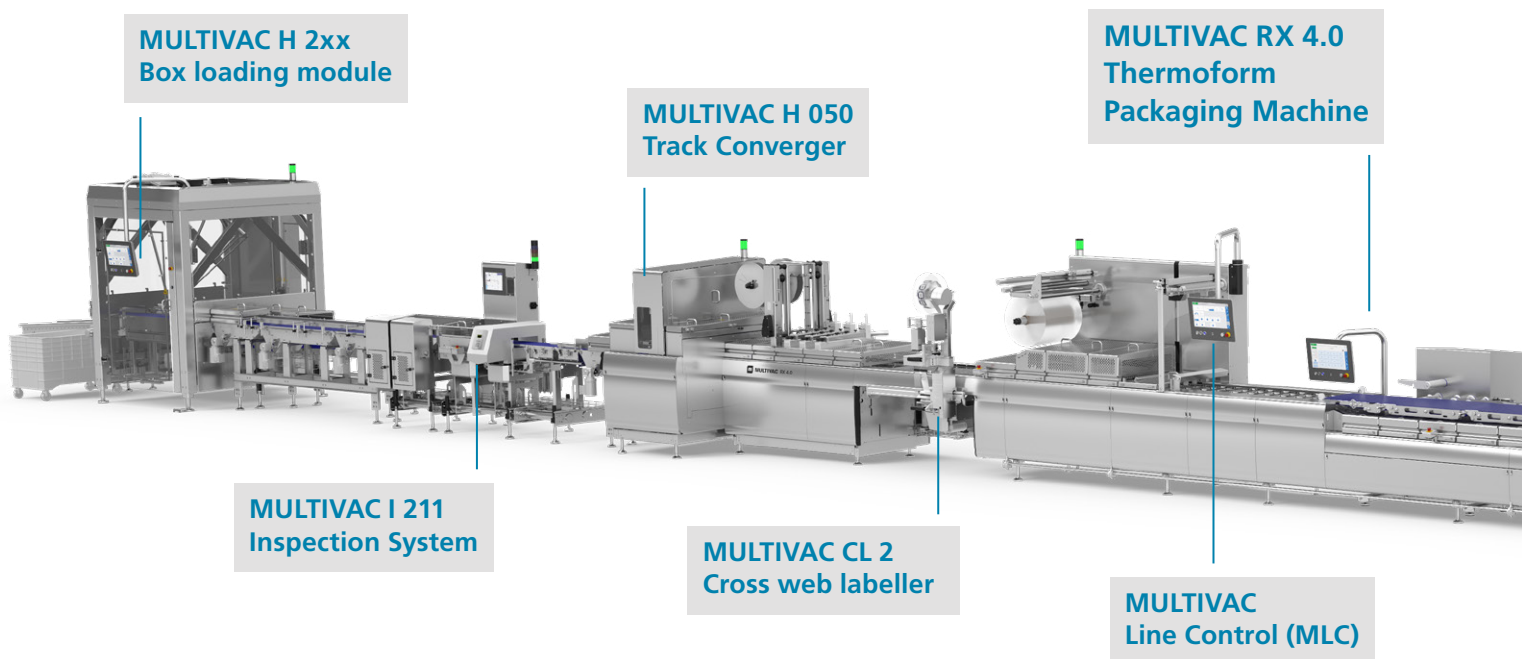

“It permits Provisur and MULTIVAC to work together to provide superior solutions. By combining the best of form pressing and slicing from Provisur with industry-leading packaging solutions from MULTIVAC, we can offer customers integrated production lines for raw ham and bacon that deliver exceptional performance and value.”

Innovating together

Rather than forming a traditional partnership, the two companies established a focused cooperation agreement. This structure allows MULTIVAC and Provisur to remain independent and competitive in other areas of their businesses, while working together exclusively on integrated solutions for bacon and cured whole muscle applications such as raw ham. The result is clarity, flexibility, and a solution purpose-built around customer demand.

Just as important as the technology is how customers experience the collaboration. Customers aren't managing multiple suppliers, they're working with two aligned partners focused on a single outcome: success on the production floor.

MULTIVAC CEO Christian Traumann explains the push for innovation at the heart of the collaboration: "The synergy of expertise has achieved so much more than simply putting together a bacon processing and packaging line. Together, we deliver complete solutions that raise performance, yield and efficiency. Customers benefit from perfectly coordinated line solutions from one source – from slicing through to loading, packaging and labelling, and right up to quality control."
